

PROTOCOL CORONA MEASURES FOR TEMPORARY AGENCY WORKERS

You start working as a temporary agency worker

Before you start working as a temporary agency worker, read carefully all information about the corona measures that you have received from your employment agency.

Your employment agency must ensure that you actually receive and understand the corona measures applied by the user company before you start working.

Any Personal Protective Equipment is a part of this. This way you know which risks are present at your new workplace and which security measures you have to take into account regarding the coronavirus.

Your health and safety are the most important

The user company where you will be working is also responsible for your working conditions and ensures that the specific corona measures at the company also apply to you. Such as, for example, the personal protective equipment specifically for the corona measures.

What does this mean for you?

Ask your employment agency before you start working what are the rules that you must follow due to the corona virus.

You are responsible for your own health and that of your colleagues at the workplace and you follow the following rules:

- regularly wash your hands with soap and water;
- cough and sneeze on the inside of your elbow;
- use tissue paper;
- don't shake hands;
- keep enough distance to your colleagues (at least 1.5m)
